LEWIS, A. WAT.

...as, it really so; the old year was golden opportunities and privileges doing good has rolled into eternity although we can look back with pride on a year spent for God and the advancement of His kingdom, yet, on this beginning of New Year's day, when we remember the goodness of our God towards us, though the year which has just been completed, our hearts urge us forward to successful achievements, then we have seen, trusting in the promise of our God that "greater things than these shall I do, because I go to my Father."

...to thank Him for the bounty supplied for us, and asking Him sometimes to be with us, we search for the things which will give us good influences in our lives.

giving from the way in which they jump about, and the devil must have trembled for the safety of his kingdom who heard the heartiness with which they sang.

"Amen! Amen! we sing and we shout, Christ is in and the devil is out,
He's turned our faces right about,
Down at the mercy seat."

During the meeting the hall was fairly bristling with flags.

ing, and as the testimonies which were sharp and to the point were given, the work of the Holy Ghost could be plainly seen on the faces of some of the listeners. On the platform was to be seen soldiers, tall, and short, and brown, and white, and of different nationalities, which was to show that God is no respecter of persons. Among the rest was the saved Dana, still rejoicing in the

of his salvation. After the testimony and a solo by Lieut. Cunningham ve got saved, but the devil seemed a very tight grip on them. How-

4. Argue with the Lord. — He says—"Come now let us reason together." True, this is a call to the sinners themselves, but if the sinners won't comply with the call, if they won't come, you go to God for them, confess their sins, and eternity and their mass migrations, and how those who have committed them deserve to be sent to hell. And the, please His great love and the stupendous sacrifices He has made on their behalf. Go to Getsemane and Calvary and remind the dear Saviour of all He endured for these very sinners there, and beg for the money He bought for them with His own agony and blood.

There is both a quiet and an active way of waiting upon God. In the quiet way people wait until God comes to them which I am not going to say that He does not. But that is not what I mean by taking hold of God. This is the active way. The soul runs after Him if He seems about to hear; kindness louder and louder in the door of mercy is not opened, and ceaselessly pursue itself or. His attention unto it has what is wanted.

6. All this will help you into faith, and God has given Himself over to faith. And if you can but—will but—believe, you shall see the Salvation of God. He may not do exactly the thing you ask for. He may not save exactly the individuals you are will be in opposition to God that it may be impossible for Him to save them. But in this case He will save somebody else. If you take hold of God for the putting down of His strength He will put it forth. If you take hold of God for His coming down He will come, and the mountains of

But mind it must be a real taking hold of God, a speaking to God, a wrestling with God, a believing in God. Beware of the soul. The heart is deceitful and the his devices is to get the man to pray to the sinners they want to save or to their own thoughts and feelings, or to the appeasement and responses of those about them.

Be warned, oh, ye Soldiers of the Lord's host, and shut your outward eyes and ears to outward sights and sounds, and follow

God, and when you have found Him, hold Him, don't let Him go until He gives you the desire of your heart.

But why should there be any necessity for all this? is not God infinitely willing to bless and save? Yes, ten thousand Hallelujahs to His glorious name, He is!

Almost every great movement had a small beginning. The Salvation Army commenced with one man—the Rev. Wm. Booth. Now the movement numbers its hundreds of thousands. But suppose every Salvationist would make a sacrifice my! how our numbers would swell by the close of the year. I believe this to be possible, if ever a Salvationist would do his or her duty by watching every opportunity to speak to sinners, and above all, live a life consistent with their profession themselves.

Stand 'neath the colors, stand near the ocean.
Stand, till the foe be driven, Stand, should the battle involve death and loss,
All will be right in heaven.
There will be glory, there will be peace,
There will be glory and there will be peace.

There, about the morning the wicked man Came,
The saint avenged be blest.

That is the way Newcastle, each singing I have rarely heard. We shall quite enjoy a speedy return to your town and hope to be able to stay longer at our next visit. The conveniences made in the watch-night service will not readily be forgotten by those present.

We were glad to see such a fine turnout of our Sackville comrades at Dorchester. I

"I am glad to see you," said the sheriff of a New Brunswick county to a soldier in the railway car. "What's that you have got on?" "Oh, my red rubber," replied the soldier. "We soldiers call it a rubber, but the Salvation Army 'd' yes," said our comrades. "Very good, and I am very glad I have," "Very good," says the Sheriff, who had been a soldier himself, "and that's a very different material in former days when he (the soldier) would be brought before him for drunkenness, 'stick to it, nothing but the grace of God could save him, man like you.' So much for the chonic.

"But" and "you" seems to be the order of the day.
